

ROONEY IS CHOSEN PRESIDENT OF CHAIN O' LAKES LAUNDRY CO.

Board of Seven Directors
Also Elected Monday Night

INVESTORS TO RECEIVE STOCK CERTIFICATES

William J. Rooney, Channel Lake resident, and president of the Chicago sheet metal workers' union, was chosen president of the Chain O' Lakes Laundry & Dry Cleaning company at a meeting of shareholders here Monday night.

Rooney, well known in Antioch through the fact that he has maintained his permanent home near here for several years and is the owner of Rooney Dells farm near Rock Lake, is a man of large affairs and broad business experience. Last year he represented the United States at the international convention of sheet metal workers in England. He has been one of the most ardent boosters for the local laundry.

Hatch, Buckland Elected

Two other enthusiasts for the newly launched industry were elected vice presidents. They are Frank W. Hatch, well known local retired farmer, and J. V. Buckland, Ringwood nurseryman. Walter I. Scott, Antioch dairyman, was chosen secretary, and E. A. Grutzmacher, treasurer and general manager, the position he has held since the concern began operation here last July.

William Sommers, Zenda, Wis., automobile dealer, and Robert C. Aht, Antioch realtor, are the other two elected to directorship.

Issue Stock Certificates

With the complete organization of the company, officials are preparing to issue certificates for the common and preferred stock to those who subscribed for shares of interest for the launching of the company on a pre-organization plan.

Affairs of the company are in excellent condition, George E. Orr, who has handled the project from the first, announced today. A rapid expansion in the new business is expected.

Wilkison, Former Gurnee Dairy Man, Shot At Herbert

A reward of $1,000 has been offered by Boone County for the arrest of the gunman who shot and fatally wounded H. W. Wilkison Sunday night in the post office at Herbert, Ill.

Mr. Wilkison was quite well known among Lake County farmers, having lived at Gurnee for three years, as manager of the Bowman Dairy plant there.

Wilkison was seated in the general store and post office at Herbert Sunday night, when a lone robber entered, asking for cigarettes, then displaying a gun, ordered those present to "slink 'em up." Wilkison, a deputy sheriff, and manager of the Herbert Bowman dairy plant, was too slow in complying with this demand to suit the bandit, who shot him in the chest, took $125 cash and departed.

The wounded man died in the hospital at Belvidere, twenty-four hours later.

17 New Members Join Moose Lodge

Another initiation for new members into the recently instituted Moose Lodge was held Monday evening, at which time the Highland Park degree team initiated seventeen who were unable to be present at the original ceremony.

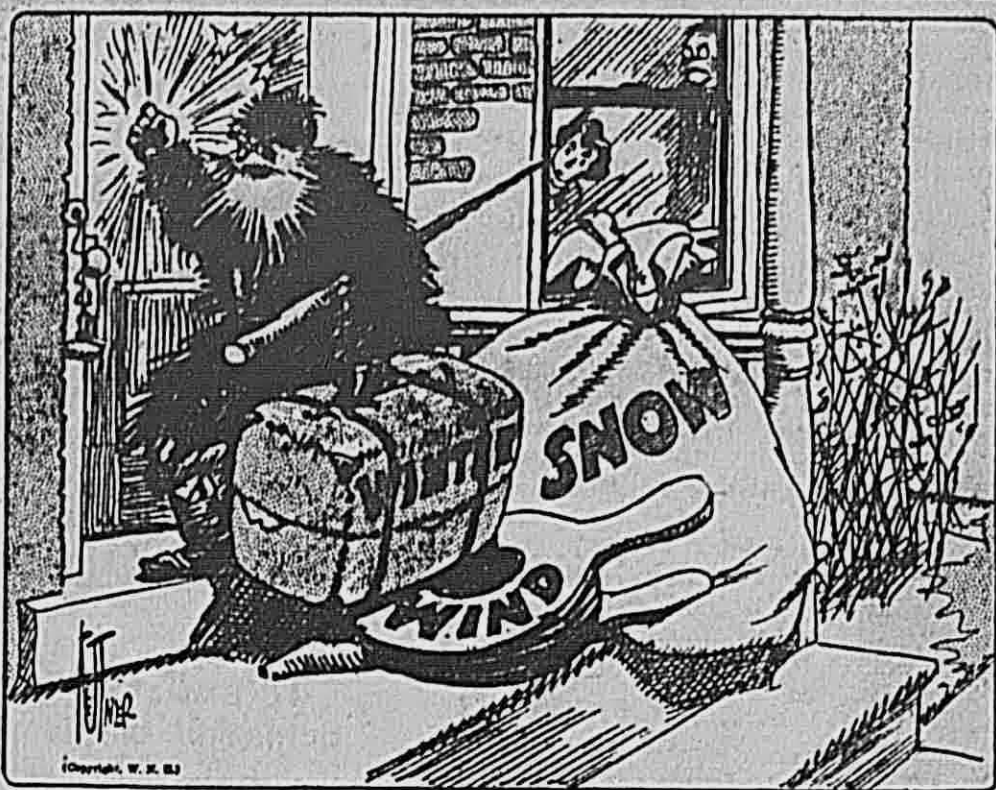

The local Moose now number 102, and a dozen or more will be initiated into the order within the next two weeks, according to Dictator William H. Regan. The Moose have fitted up a very fine club room in the Naber building.

Supreme officials of the order at Mooseheart, who were at first dubious about sending an organizer into this community, have expressed great surprise at the phenomenal showing made here, as the order is proving to be one of the most popular ever initiated in this locality.

Women Voice Protest Of Hospital Management

Voicing their protest of the present management of the County Hospital at Waukegan, the Daughters of the American Revolution this week in a letter addressed to Lake County newspapers endorsed the plan of the Lake County Medical Society for raising the standard of the efficiency at the institution. The letter is signed by seven prominent Waukegan women.

Since a demand for the proper administration of public affairs constitutes the highest form of citizenship, and since constructive criticism and unselfish participation in civic matters constitutes the highest form of patriotism, we, the Waukegan Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, with the desire to assume our proper share of the common responsibility of this community, and in a spirit of helpful co-operation, and after a full investigation and much consideration, respectfully protest against the present system of managing and conducting the Lake County hospital, and heartily endorse the plan suggested by the Lake County Medical Society as a definite and approved method of raising the standard and efficiency of our county hospital and of putting it on a basis more in keeping with the demands of the times and of the requirements of efficiently functioning, high-class hospitals.

Respectfully submitted and unanimously endorsed by the Conservation Committee of the Waukegan Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, as follows:

Mrs. C. D. Shipley, Chairman; Bertha E. Jolley, Mrs. Elmer L. Clarke, Mrs. F. Knight, Mrs. John S. Morrow, Mrs. Maud P. Rawn, Mrs. John Westerman.

Thieves Enter St. Peter's Rectory; No Valuables Taken

Unknown robbers broke into the rectory at St. Peter's church here Sunday night, during the absence of Rev. Frawley. No money or any valuable papers were taken. No clue was found as to the purpose of the midnight visitation.

The housekeeper first discovered that prowlers had entered the building, but it was not known until Rev. Frawley's return, whether anything of value had been taken. No trace leading to the identity of the persons making this second attack upon property connected with St. Peter's church has yet been found.

The fate of the four Fox Lake youths, who wantonly shot at the church windows on December 2, will not be decided until next March, when the case comes up before the grand jury. The boys are all out on bail for the present.

Antioch Wins Championship at DeKalb Contest

Antioch takes the agricultural limelight once more, by virtue of the grain judging team of the vocational department of agriculture at the Antioch high school winning the championship at the Northeast Illinois Sectional Judging Contest held at DeKalb last Friday. The Antioch team functioned perfectly throughout the contest and built up a large score of 772 points out of a possible score of 800. Ward Edwards was also high man of the contest, receiving a score of 98 per cent perfect. George Dunford, also of Antioch, was second high man, with a score of 95. Eighteen schools of this section of the state competed.

The corn judging team also did an excellent piece of work when they placed Antioch in second position, being defeated by only a small margin by the DeKalb team. Arthur Griffin was third high man and Elmer Sheehan was fifth high man in corn judging. The poultry judging team did not place at the contest.

The members of the teams are as follows:

Grain Team — Ward Edwards, George Dunford, Bertrand Gallger, and Paul Nielsen.

Corn Team — Jasper McCormack, Elmer Sheehan, Arthur Griffin, and Willard Schneider.

Poultry Team — Harry Johnson, William Yopp, Norman Barthel, and Ward Wilton.

C. L. Kutil, coach and instructor of vocational agriculture at the Antioch school, accompanied the boys to DeKalb.

ACCIDENTS NUMEROUS OVER THE WEEK-END

Michigan Girl Suffers Bad
Scalp Wound; Others
Uninjured

The reckless driving of a Chicago man caused a collision with a Burlington car about 2 o'clock Sunday morning near the Dick Wilton place at Lake Villa.

A trial was held at the city hall that same night, Schaeffer, of Chicago, who was driving a Gardner car, being held guilty of reckless driving. There was only one other occupant of the car, a woman, whose name was not given.

Upon the request of Porter, owner of the Burlington car, a warrant was served Schaeffer, and a civil suit for damages to Porter's car will be heard tomorrow. Porter was alone in the car.

Girl Hurt

Slippery roads and fog caused a De Soto car from North Chicago, was only slightly hurt. The other four occupants of the car were from Waukegan, and were not injured. The girl's name was not ascertained, but her home was said to be in Michigan. Her injuries were not critical.

C. J. Roschlein, of 636 Fullerton Ave., Chicago, tipped over south of Loon Lake Sunday afternoon. The car was considerably damaged, but was repaired in time for him to continue to Chicago that night.

Berney Fields ran into the ditch just north of the railroad tracks north of town Sunday morning, damaging his car.

Carols To Be Sung Christmas Eve At Community Tree

Every Village Child Will Form in Line to Meet
St. Nicholas

Gay Christmas carols will ring out on the frosty air Christmas eve, when the annual Christmas Tree program is held at 7:30 at the corner of Main and Orchard streets, under the supervision of the Woman's Club and the American Legion.

Anticipation of this program has been growing daily among the village youngsters. When they passed this corner for the past week, there stood their tree, glowing with many lights. The tree is donated by Herbert Vos, for the pleasure of the children, every year.

The group of lusty carol singers will receive reinforcements this year when the Community chorus, which meets every Monday evening at the high school building, will lift their voices in song, under the direction of S. E. Pollock. All present will join in the singing. Community chorus members are particularly urged to be present to help Santa Claus in his work of making the children happy.

Father Frawley will speak briefly. All village children, no matter what their religion, will form a line to receive their candy, nuts and oranges from St. Nicholas, with the aid of the American Legion boys, the committee in charge consisting of Commander S. M. Walence, John Horan and Alonzo Runyard, and the Community Service Committee of the Woman's Club, composed of Mrs. William Osmond, Mrs. Herb Vos, Mrs. Fred Hawkins, and Mrs. P. E. Chinn. St. Nicholas is greatly aided by Herb Vos, whose privilege it is every year to supply the candy and fruit.

The Woman's Club and the American Legion combine in the decoration of the tree.

FIRE DESTROYS ONE COTTAGE; DAMAGES OTHERS

Loss to Charles Joyce of Channel Lake Estimated at $6,000

Flames, which ruined one cottage and damaged two others, Monday night, threatened to demolish the entire group of fifteen cottages on the south shore of Channel Lake, which are owned by Charles Joyce, of Chicago.

The blaze was first discovered shortly before 7:30 by the caretaker, Harry Shumaker, who immediately summoned the Antioch fire department, but before the department arrived, one of the cottages and all the furniture had been completely destroyed. The two adjoining cottages were also in flames, but the firemen extinguished them, saving them from further damage. The sparks were flying in all directions, and the whole area surrounding the fire was in constant danger.

The loss of the Charles Joyce cottage was estimated at $5,000, while the damage to the two other cottages amounted to about $1,000.

No cause for the fire was revealed. Because of the frequency of such fires of late, which have started from no apparent reason, John Horan has written State Fire Marshal Paul S. Bertram, asking that an investigation be made to determine whether a firebug is operating in this community.

Class Of 46 Is Confirmed at St. Peter's Church Mon.

The little children of the St. Peter's Catholic church prepared for their first Holy Communion, under the direction of the Dominican Sisters of Oak Park, Ill., Monday morning, December 8, at 9 o'clock.

The High Mass was celebrated by the Rev. L. W. Frawley, pastor of St. Gild's church, Oak Park, Ill.

His Lordship, Bishop Shell, of Chicago, confirmed a class of forty-six in the evening at 7:30. He was assisted by eighteen priests of the Arch Diocese of Chicago.

The three new marble altars, donated by H. P. Joyce, Antioch, Jerry Horan and W. J. Rooney, Chicago, were consecrated by his Lordship on the following morning at 8 o'clock.

He also imparted a year's indulgence to all the Faithful in commemoration of this solemn ceremony, which indulgence is applicable annually so long as St. Peter's church exists.

This is a singular privilege conferred upon Antioch, as there are only three Catholic churches in the entire Arch Diocese, which have been so honored.

TAKE LIGHTS FROM CHRISTMAS TREE

Colored light bulbs have been disappearing from the community Christmas tree at the corner of Main and Orchard streets the last week with such annoying regularity that village officers have been keeping a keen lookout for the guilty parties. Saturday, five were missing, and by Monday night a total of eight had disappeared.

Whether prank, malicious mischief, or just plain petty thievery, the acts will not be countenanced and those guilty will be punished, if apprehended, according to Marshal John Brogan, who has been keeping an eye on the tree since the thefts were noted.

MAINTENANCE MEN TAKE SIGNS FROM HIGHWAYS HERE

Following the edict of the state highway department of some weeks ago, with drastic action here last week, highway maintenance men, headed by John Flannigan took from the right-of-way of all state highways all projecting signs and other road obstructions, according to orders from the state department. The only signs spared were those attached to buildings. It was also recommended that the mushroom or red dome lights at street intersections here also be removed, and the village authorities have so ordered. Intersections will be marked with black lines on the pavements, Flannigan said.

Community Builders Meet in Waukegan

The Community Builders of Lake County met at the Masonic Temple in Waukegan Friday night. There was a large attendance of independent merchants, who were addressed by a very able speaker from Memphis, Tenn.

Special Yule Programs To Be Featured At Community Churches

It has ever been a custom dear to the hearts of the home and church lovers to gather at the family hearth on Christmas eve to sing carols and relive in their own words and minds the glory of that time so long ago, when Christianity was introduced to the world at the birth of the infant Saviour. Ministers have long recognized the value of the church as a means of drawing the people nearer to their Lord, because the atmosphere breeds reverence and awe. Thus a state of divine worship can most easily be reached through the medium of song.

The churches of Antioch and surrounding communities are planning special musical programs for the Christmas season. All the churches welcome everyone to their services and programs, regardless of denomination.

AMERICA PAYS LESS FOR GASOLINE

Those who rail at "the high price of gasoline" should know that American motorists pay only about 60 per cent as much per gallon for motor fuel as do the car owners of the rest of the world.

A recent study of prices demonstrates that the average price of gasoline in this country is about 20 cents a gallon. The average for the rest of the world is 35 cents. In Great Britain, France, Germany, and Italy, motorists pay up to 40 cents, and in Bolivia gas reaches the record price of 65 cents. Even motorists in Canada and Mexico pay 15 to 20 per cent more than we do.

Gasoline is the only commodity in general use which now costs less than it did before the war. Today's dollar, on the 1913 basis, buys more than a dollar's worth of gasoline, but only about 60 cents worth of the average commodity. This is due, principally, to the phenomenal progress made by the American oil industry in developing new fields, more scientific and economic producing and refining methods, and the best marketing facilities in the world. The industry has worked with the object in view of providing its buying public with the highest possible grade of motor fuel at a reasonable price.

When gasoline prices appear to be exorbitant, it will usually be found that this is the result of excessive gas taxes. Tax rates of four, five and six cents a gallon—20 to 30 per cent of the price—are common. Now increases are proposed in many states. However, the American public has shown that it is weary of being "gas-taxed" to death and it is improbable that the next few years will bring many increases.

"THE PANIC IN POLITICS"

In the December Vanity Fair, Jay Franklin does a splendid bit of work in analyzing the theories advanced on so-called issues in the last election.

There was, Mr. Franklin says, only one real issue before the American people when they came to the polls in November—the economic situation. The upheaval, he continues, was due to popular resentment against the politicians who failed to cure the actual causes of that resentment—"The Four Horsemen of the Economic Apocalypse": hunger, cold, unemployment and fear of the future.

A strenuous effort is being made to demonstrate that the election proved that the American people wanted government ownership of the power industry. Power was not a deciding factor, in more than three states. Electric rates are not of any great moment to a man in search of a job, nor is the spectacle of politicians spending the people's money to experiment with business particularly appealing to a family which is wondering where its winter fuel is to come from.

Government and industry must co-operate to solve economic problems. Prosperity will come back as the result of industrial expansion and development—not as the result of bureaucratic meddling with our institutions.

USELESS LAWS CAUSE LAW DISRESPECT

A recent statement brings out the fact that it will cost twice as much to maintain California prisons for the next two years as it did for the past two years.

All over the nation state governments—as well as federal—are perplexed by the growing cost of prisons, which is, of course, the obvious result of the increasing number of prisoners. Many penitentiaries are crowded to the point where officials are desperately seeking to find a place to put the steady flow of new inmates. The upshot of the matter will be that the public will be taxed to build more institutions, as has already been done in various localities.

Many causes have been blamed for increasing crime but authorities have stated that the American crime problem will never be solved until our legal system is revised, unnecessary, restrictive laws weeded out and we return to more strict enforcement of basic laws.

There are thousands of persons in prison today because of acts which in themselves are not crimes but which a "new" law makes a crime. The mania for law-making in this country has been the greatest wholesale manufacturer of criminals and the principal cause for disrespect for law. More laws to restrict individual rights and liberties will mean more law breaking.

GOOD ROADS FOR 1931

In a great many states effort is being made to accelerate public works building as a cure for unemployment.

Roads are the leading factor in any program of this kind. Their construction gives work to thousands of needy persons at good wages—and the cost of the work is returned many times over to states and communities. Good roads are not an expense but an investment which pays a high rate of dividends.

At present, particular attention is being paid to rural roads. It is a rare farmer who is assured of a year-round weatherproof artery of communication between his farm and a main highway. Increased farm road appropriations not only remedy this, but provide a living to the multitude of farmers and farm employees who face an economic crisis resulting from the unsettled marketing conditions for farm products.

New York, California and other states have pointed the way. A move is on foot to increase the federal government's appropriations. The farm-to-market road movement should take a long jump forward in 1931.

Sponsor Charity Ball at Waukegan

A charity ball, planned to be one of the largest and most attractive affairs of the season in Waukegan, is to be held Monday night, December 22, at the Waukegan township high school new gymnasium, for the benefit of the Unemployed Relief Fund.

Posters have been put on display in surrounding communities and tickets have been sold as far north as Racine and as far south as Chicago.

The date has been set at this time, particularly, so the college students may take advantage of the event, during their holiday vacation.

Aside from two orchestras to play for dancing, there will be a large bill of professional entertainment, all of which has been donated.

Through the courtesy of local organizations, including the Globe Department store and the Public Service company, special lighting arrangements and colorful decorations will add to the physical atmosphere of the ball.

Judging from the ticket sales, it is to be a very popular event, more than a thousand tickets having been sold at this date, Monday, December 15. The ball is being sponsored by the Waukegan Daily Times, and all money collected will go into the relief fund, of which H. C. Burnett, president of the Waukegan National Bank, is treasurer.

Composite Language

Richard C. French, in his book entitled "On the English Language, Past and Present," says: "If the English language were to be subdivided into a hundred parts, forty-five of these might be Anglo-Saxon, or Old English; forty-five Latin (including Latin that has come through the French). Five, perhaps most of our scientific nomenclature, are from the Greek, such as the names of new instruments and processes (lithography, telephone, telegraph, etc.)."

Point Moral Idea

Little Apes of Nikko, sometimes known as the "Three Wise Monkeys," is the name of monkeys which appear in a mural decoration among ancient tombs at Nikko, Japan. The three monkeys are as follows: Mizaru, who sees no evil; Kikazaru, who hears no evil; Mazaru, who speaks no evil. The legend connected with these monkeys is simply a moral idea to point out the wisdom of minding one's own affairs and the folly of scandal.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I—Renewing a childish attachment, Ernestine Briceland, of a wealthy Chicago family, is tremendously attracted by Will Todd, youthful newspaper artist, son of a not particularly well-to-do carpenter. Her sister Lillian, more of the conventional type, and aware of the attitude their father would take toward his daughter's marriage, to an impetuous youth, urges Ernestine to end the affair, but the latter, capable of a passionate attachment, and realizing that in Will Todd she has found her only refuge, refuses.

CHAPTER II—The love-making progresses swiftly, and finally, largely because of Ernestine's urging, they make a "runaway" marriage. Briceland is infuriated but helpless, Ernestine being of age, and after a stormy scene the girl, with her husband, leaves her parents' home. Loring Hamilton, wealthy young lawyer, long Lillian's suitor, wins her consent to be his wife.

CHAPTER III—The bride night is spent at Will's home, and next day they begin their married life in a single room in a humble neighborhood. Ernestine realizes the difference her marriage has made in her social sphere, but, secure in her love, faces the future bravely.

CHAPTER IV—John Poole, Will's best friend, successful though dissipated artist, gives a birthday party for Ernestine at Rudy Pastano's bohemian resort on the fringe of the underworld. Pastano, notorious as a bootlegger and gang leader, irritates Ernestine by his criticism of Will for bringing his young wife to such a place. Appealing to Will to take her home, he delegates the task to a friend, Tommy Tucker, explaining that he must see Poole, who has drunk too much, to his home. Ernestine is hurt and indignant. The situation is saved by the appearance of Loring and Lillian, who had heard of her whereabouts and with whom she leaves the party.

CHAPTER V—Reproaching him for leaving her "unprotected" in his car, for Poole, Will takes an attitude which awakens Ernestine to the realities of her new life. She is conscious of approaching motherhood, and in anticipation of the event opens a small "padding" account.

CHAPTER VI—Will's father dies suddenly. A suggestion that the funeral be held from the Briceland home, the Todd house being small, meets with refusal to Ernestine's deep sorrow, though her father's attitude toward the funeral is a relief. Ernestine's financial aid, which she declines, in loyalty to Will, Pastano brings his wife to a visit of consolation, and Ernestine is touched by their friendliness. The shock of her husband's death leaves the elder Mrs. Todd a hopeless invalid. Lillian and Loring are married.

CHAPTER VII—Will's mother dies almost immediately after the birth of Ernestine's baby. The couple live in the Todd house. Loring and Ernestine, in association with Pastano, with whom he has formed a friendship, are eager for wealth. Changes in Will's office fail to bring him advancement, and Ernestine is again looking forward to motherhood.

CHAPTER VIII—Pastano acquires a home at Langley lake, aristocratic resort, where the Bricelands have a cottage. Loring and Will quarrel bitterly, apparently over John Poole, and the sisters, loyal to both their husbands, feel separated. Will, disheveling an office rule, is discharged. Poole, radiant, resigns. Ernestine's worries, and her approaching motherhood, affect her health. On a trip to the bank she faints on the street.

CHAPTER IX—Unconscious, Ernestine is taken to a hospital, where Will, sent by Loring, finds her. After a night of anguish the baby is born and Ernestine's recovery assured. Will, John Poole in opening an independent studio, which promises to be successful. The Todds take up their life again.

CHAPTER X—Poole's lack of interest in the new venture threatens to wreck it. Will has a vision of success as a painter, the dream of his life. Poole, on the eve of giving up his work and going to Florida, is found dead in the studio.

Will stood in amazement in the middle of the bedroom, his tie in his hands, looking back at the bright reel of memory—himself and Ernestine walking on Clark street in a late snow—going into Pastano's. How his heart had burned that night at Loring and Lillian—at all of them stirring Ernestine against him. Why had he cared? He didn't care now. He was singularly unmoved by the pronouncement that Loring had forced Wiston's hand, and Wiston had seized the first excuse to dismiss him. He realized with a shock that his resentment against Loring had always been personal—from the time he had been a little boy dragging a brace, and Loring had been a big boy, strong and robust and always teasing Ernestine and pulling at her hair. It was because Loring had despised him—not because of Ernestine. It had been Loring's strength and hardness that he had hated, not Loring's attention to his wife. How strange to think that his jealousy had been for himself and not for her. His self-esteem had suffered, not his love.

He became conscious of Ernestine's voice, querulous with Peter who protested against being put to bed. Ernestine ought not take that annoyed, vexed tone with the boy. He realized that he had heard her speak so to Peter frequently, of late. If Peter were naughty he should be punished, not hecctored. Will took the boy from his mother.

"Go and get dressed," he said to her in a tone of command which astonished her. "You're always scolding the kid about something. Ever since Elaine came he's in trouble. You can't expect a healthy boy to go on tiptoe all his life because he has a sick sister. Go on and dress, and I'll take care of him. Be quiet, Peter, or I'll punish you. Not another word."

"He's just like you, and your family," Will told Ernestine. "He is will ful and energetic and intelligent and strong. He wants his own way. Instead of dealing with him firmly you quarrel with him. You should not permit him the equality of an argument, and I want you to stop it, Ernestine."

Recollections of a dozen times when Will had been high-handed with her rushed over Ernestine.

"So you don't allow the Bricelands equality?" she asked in a cold rage, finding it difficult to take correction from him.

"It's just as well for us to understand one thing at a time without going into another," answered Will calmly. "If I think you are taking the wrong tone with Peter, I'll say so. It's my right."

They left the house and walked to the car line in silence. They sat beside each other in the car, they walked toward Pastano's, together in flesh, remote in spirit. The strong satisfaction of inner activity shone on Will's face, and it was like a declaration of war to Ernestine. Her anger grew until she could not remember when she had burned with such resentment.

She was excessively courteous to every one at the dinner party. John Poole told her of his plans for Florida, of the end of his agreement with Will. Ernestine was astonished.

"Why didn't you tell me?" she demanded, turning to Will, and he answered her:

"We didn't have a chance to talk." Ernestine felt that Pastano's was bad medicine for her. She was unhappy again.

At home, later, she spoke to Will somewhat timidly.

"Are we going to be enemies, Will? So many married people are foes—bitter, unforgiving. Lillian and Loring are in continual conflict. He must dominate her every move. He's the one to say where they will go, what they will eat, whether or not they will have children. I'm willing to accept what you said about Peter—only, let's keep our unity."

"You know I will never love anyone but you, Ernestine," he said impatiently, "but I've got a big job on my hands now. Don't be neurotic. I've got to swing this thing, and you mustn't be emotional if my mind is on my job instead of on sentimentalities. Anyhow, what are you talking about? Nothing's changed."

She was silent. As he sat on the edge of the bed smoking, she finally closed her eyes against his immobility, turned her head on her pillow and tried to sleep, but burning tears slid underneath the lids.

Will was only slightly aware of her weeping. He seemed to have entered into a new and stimulating plane of existence. He had passed out of the role of adorer and slave for Ernestine, he thought, with some indefinable vexation at her in his heart. He felt himself a man grown now, and full of sap. A wife was only one part of the complex and fascinating business of living.

He was late at the office in the morning, as they had overslept. There was something heavy against the door, so that he could scarcely open it, and, on entering, he almost fell over the lifeless form of John Poole.

He Almost Fell Over the Lifeless Form of John Poole.

He had come back to the office after his birthday party, and had been at work. The light still shone over his drawing board. He had died here, alone, and Will, even in that first shock, was full of the knowledge that his death had come, not alone in the night but with the loss of his gift.

Yet on the drawing board was a picture—his last. It was different from his other work. It was a bend in the stream with a great tree overhanging the water and the meadow beyond and the figures of half a dozen small boys naked and white in the sunshine, playing about the tree and on a spring-board caught beneath a great root. There was in it no mockery, no satire, no clowning. It was simple, kind. Staring at it, before he went to give the alarm, Will felt sure that this work of the skilled pencil was the externalization after half a century of some remembered scene of his boyhood.

Will grieved honestly for John Poole and thought often and mysteriously about that last picture. If John Poole could draw like that, why had he never done so? The answer to this was disturbing.

Will established his rights to Poole's cartoon ideas only to find them worthless. Contracts ran out, strips piled up unused, and he found himself working against a vast indifference, more crushing, more impenetrable than that which he had fought for a place for Poole's strip. But his new inner activity carried with it such personal joy that he could not be sufficiently chagrined by the collapse of his business enterprise and the danger to his income.

CHAPTER XI

The Rift in the Lute

"I think you'd better go to Pastano's, don't you, Ernestine?" Will asked one night in June. The children sat at the supper table with them, and the heat, turning more sultry with dusk, was already stifling.

"It's one way of getting rid of us," said Ernestine, a quality of familiar bitterness in her voice.

Will made no answer for a moment, then he said, with more gentleness than had become his wont, "I think perhaps it'll be a good thing for all of us. It will give me a chance to work out some ideas here in the house alone, and it will be a rest and change for you. Anyhow, listen, don't you think you could dispense with a little of the heavy iron?" If I want you to stay in Chicago it's in the hope that you will die of the heat, and if I want you to go away, it's to rid myself of you. Let's think about only the children."

"Wrong again," said Ernestine, and laughed unhappily.

They were poor again now, and it was so hot. It was necessary for them to go either to Pastano's or to mamma's, and this fact spoiled the prospect of a summer at the lake. She wondered why she was reluctant to leave Will when they rubbed each other so raw!

It was not like it had been, that other hard time, when they were close—heart against heart, sharing every thought and feeling. For now, she was poor, but he was not. She was looking upon the face of poverty that John Poole had depicted for her years ago when she was a careless bride. But Will, either because of longer and closer acquaintance with Lack, or, more probably, because of his own secret happiness, was not dismayed—was, in fact, unfeeling.

All day long, with the front bedroom door shut, he worked in there on drawings which he would not let her see, but which he could not seem to sell. Their difficulties, her fears for the future, did not pierce him. He was intemperately good-natured and happy. Ernestine was filled with a deep despair and vexation with him that he could be so casual.

As she sat, trying to swallow a little of the food she had prepared so carefully, Ernestine saw ahead of her a long vista of the years in which she washed and ironed Will's clothes, tended to his bodily needs, for food, for comfort, for sex, and was for ever outside the circle of his reality, a person whom he saw only to forget when his glance left her. She could bear any hardship, and pain. But to do without love—this she could not bear.

"I really don't see why I shouldn't go to mamma's," she said. "All those silly old quarrels with Loring—what do they amount to? But mamma is going to have guests all summer—and you don't want me to go there."

"I don't care what you do," he said stiffly. "Only I'll never go to Lake Haven again."

"I'll go to Pastano's," she said listlessly. "I'll write tomorrow."

The day came when Pastano's big limousine with the swartly chauffeur stood at the door for them, to take them to the train. Ernestine was admonishing the children about keeping clean, and Will put his arms about her, so practical and stern in her motherhood.

"Why are you always so sore at me?" he asked, and kissed her averted cheek. "You're so strange, and so difficult. I know it's hard for you, but I'm doing all I can."

"Are you?" she asked, and smiled in a secret annoying way.

Will's temper rose within him.

"You think I'm not?"

"Did I say that?"

"Yes—practically—yes, you did. Your tone—"

"Oh, then I must be careful even of my tones?"

He flung his hands up in a gesture of despair, and made no further effort to woo her. After a moment she turned to him with her great tragic eyes.

"You know that I don't care how poor we are. I can do without everything—you know it isn't material things."

But Will had withdrawn his effort at conciliation. He knew that she was talking about his secrecy over his drawings. Well, he could not share with her what was so ephemeral that a stray thought in his own head destroyed it. He couldn't talk about it. All the strong instinct of self-preservation for the rift that was developing within him forbade it utterly. The processes he was trying to put upon paper were nebulous. He was acutely fearful for them. If Ernestine did not like them, they would be destroyed. "Don't open that suitcase, Peter," said Ernestine, and they went out and got into the car, bags and all.

They met Madame Pastano and her tall, silent, handsome husband, whose expressive eyes glanced at once into Ernestine's with a penetrating look. Will went into the coach with them, kissed them all goodby, and went away.

The children waved to him from the windows, but he did not look back, hastening off through the gate, his very back eager and relieved.

Ernestine leaned back against the cushion and closed her eyes against Madame Pastano's friendly curiosity. Through everything that had happened to them they had been in love, until these last few months. Would she ever have Will again as she had had him once—his tender love, his gentle passion, his strength? Not if she kept on striking and wounding him, common sense told her. But she sighed with helplessness. In the face of her knowledge the starvation at her heart for the old love, the old confidence and affection between herself and Will, she could not control her pride, her desire for revenge. The word brought her up short. Revenge? What had she to revenge? Will had not harmed her. Bewildered, she could not understand by what steps they had come into this impasse. Yet there they were. The condition, however unreal its beginnings, was now real enough. It was beyond her knowledge, or his either, that the rift in the lute had been simultaneous with the awakening to activity in Will of a true creative gift.

The next regular meeting of the O. E. S. will be held Wednesday evening December 17. The principal order of business will be the initiation of three candidates. Last Wednesday evening the following officers were elected for 1931: Worthy Matron, Mrs. Clyde Jackson; Worthy Patron, Joseph Goff; associate Matron, Mrs. Florence Bryant; associate Patron, H. B. Gaines; secretary, Mrs. Laura Lavey; treasurer, Mrs. Anna Steffin; conductress, Mrs. Doris Whitchee; associate conductress, Mrs. Margaret Long; trustee three years, Mrs. Edna Batterson. After the initiation Wednesday evening, December 17, a 10-cent gift will be given and a slip of paper with the name of the donor.

On Thursday evening, December 18, the P. T. A. of the Bristol state graded school will hold their regular meeting at which Superintendent Ihlenfeldt will show the movie, "Byrd at the South Pole." Members of the children's literary society will serve lunch, the proceeds of which will go to this literary society.

On Friday night, December 19, the above school will present a fine program consisting of songs, drills, exercises, recitations, dialogues and clever playlets.

Charles Goff, aged 8 years, had the misfortune to break his collar bone Monday while wrestling at school.

Mrs. Merle Hull, of Racine, Wis., was a weekend visitor at the Samuel Knapp home. She came to visit her little son, who is being cared for by Mrs. Ernest Knapp. The Ernest Knapp family have left their home in Racine to come and assist in the care of his father, Samuel Knapp.

Several Bristol Epworth Leaguers attended the southern sub-district group meeting held in the Union Grove M. E. church Sunday evening. Joseph Goff led the singing and sang a solo. Francis Foulke, Joseph Goff, Alfred Pohlman and Arthur Berg comprised the male quartet. Bristol received the award of the silver cup won at the booth festival held at Watford November 33.

The Kenosha County Council of Religious Education held at the Bristol M. E. church Sunday afternoon was largely attended. The principal address was delivered by Dr. E. H. Mueller, of Kenosha.

The home talent play sponsored by the O. E. S. which was given Thursday night was a real success considering the inclement weather. However, $50.50 net proceeds were realized, with a considerable expense attached. The play was well rendered and created a continuous round of applause.

Miss Edith Murdoch, assisted by Mrs. Fred Murdoch, of Kenosha, gave a 1 o'clock dinner Wednesday to the following guests: Mrs. Albert Tank, Mrs. May Schroeder, Mrs. Charles Turnock, Mrs. Jesse Stanley, of Kenosha, and Mrs. John Evans; also Miss Carrie Cropley, of Lake Forest, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Castle, of Chicago, spent the week-end with Edmund Pike.

Mrs. Fred Thorne, Miss Florence Murdoch and Arch Murdoch motored to Racine, Wis., Sunday to see Mrs. Preston Smith. Her husband died suddenly Friday.

Mrs. August Lubkeman is serving on circuit court jury this week. Mr. and Mrs. August Lubkeman returned home last week from a visit with the latter's sisters, Mrs. Jack Minnis, Mrs. Carlson, Mrs. Osborn and Mrs. Maker, of Chicago, and also with their daughter, Miss Hazel, in Evanston, Ill.

Miss Caroline Berg and brother, Arthur, went to Penauke Wednesday where Miss Caroline stayed to aid her sister, Mrs. Hugo Drescher, who recently severely broke and splintered her ankle.

Mrs. Frank Barter, of Harvard, Ill., spent the week-end with Mrs. Mary Rowbottom.

Mrs. Fred Maleski gave a birthday party in honor of her little son, Gaylord, aged 7 years, Thursday, after the school hour. His guests were Robert Houston, Ernest Pohlman, Windsor Schonscheck and Warren Evers. A fine luncheon was served and games enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Butrick announce the birth of a son born Tuesday morning at the hospital in Kenosha.

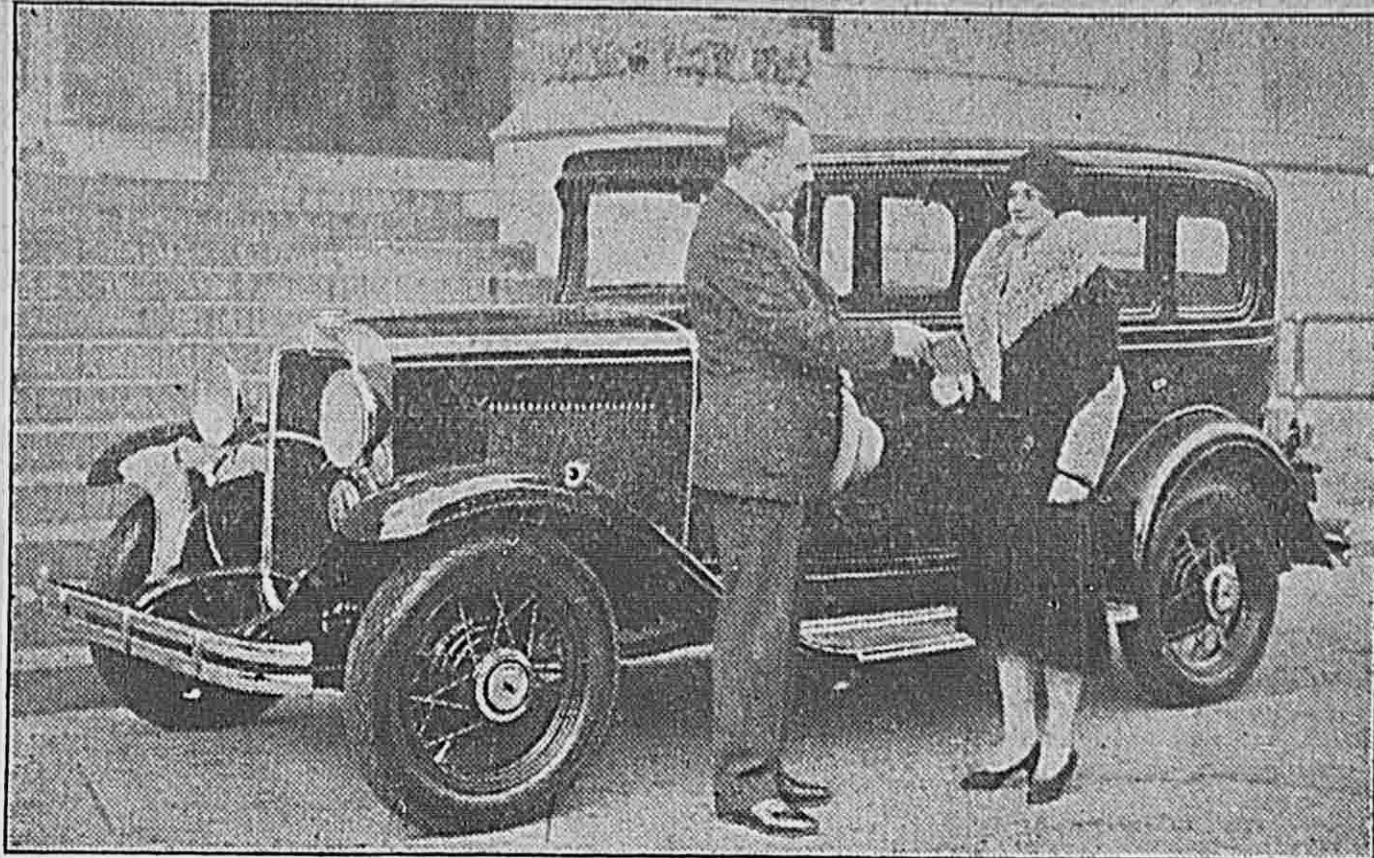

George Thomas, of Salem, is giving a dance in the hall Saturday night. Music is provided by Schmitt's orchestra, from Grays Lake.

Miss Carrie Murdoch, of Union Grove, is a guest of Miss Edith Murdoch.

Indian Peace Medals

The early peace medals given to the Indians were struck in any design to suit the fancy of the donor. Beginning with Jefferson's day, a standard official medal was adopted and those following were the same size, design and metal, with the names of the respective Presidents, until the administration of Fillmore in 1850, when the reverse was entirely changed.

HEADS
or HEARTS
at Christmas
by Robert Stead

HARVEY DANE turned from Freda Hanson's home in a brown study. For two years he had been a caller at Freda's, and for most of that time he had been trying to find the answer to one question. Should he ask her to marry him?

Freda was attractive, and Harvey was quite sure he was in love with her. He suspected, too, that she returned his regard. But Harvey had prided himself that his head ruled his heart. When he left the farmhouse of his boyhood to make his way in the city he had laid down one rule for himself: never to act on emotion; always to act on reason. And at twenty-eight he was assistant manager of his company. The rule seemed to work.

Now Freda had been reared in luxury. Harvey's salary would be little more than spending money for her. Leaving emotions out of the argument, would good sense dictate that he should marry her?

As he pondered this problem bells pealed out, and he remembered it was Christmas eve. Of course! He had given Freda some trinket, and a little package from her nestled in his overcoat pocket. It was the season of gifts—

"Please, sir, will you give me a dime?"

Harvey looked down at a ragged urchin—a girl—perhaps not more than ten years old. Harvey's intelligence told him that to give money to beggars encouraged delinquency. But something more than intelligence seemed to prompt him now. He stopped and spoke with her.

"What would you do with a dime?" he asked.

"Please, Sir, Will You Give Me a Dime?"

"I would buy a toy for my little brother for Christmas." It was a glib answer, probably untrue. But Harvey had become interested.

"Have you no father or mother, to buy things for Christmas?"

"No, sir. We live with our aunt, and she has been sick."

A plausible story. Still—

A vacant taxi drove into view. Harvey signalled it. "Get in, little girl, and tell me where you live."

She looked at him a moment, surprised. Then, her child instinct satisfied, she obeyed. They stopped in one of the poorest parts of the city. Here, in a single room, Harvey found a sick woman and a boy of four or five.

It did not take him long to act. As he gave his orders at a near-by restaurant anyone could see he had thrown intelligence to the winds.

When a hot meal for three had been sent to the sick room Harvey found a telephone booth. Fortunately Miss Hanson had not retired.

"Freda, I need you—on a job," he said. Then he told her of his adventure. "They need clothing, cleaning up, care—and Christmas," he concluded, "and I need a woman to show me how."

"I'll be there with my car in twenty minutes," she answered.

Then began the greatest Christmas eve Harvey Dane had experienced.

With Freda at his side he plunged through the city, buying groceries, medicine, children's toys; telephoning a doctor; arranging for a motherly soul to take charge. When, long after midnight, they placed their gifts beside the sleeping children, they somehow felt very close to each other.

"The woman will be all right," the doctor had said. "Rest and nourishment—that's all she needs."

But a difficulty soon arose. Harvey insisted that he would pay all.

"That is not sensible, Harvey," Freda told him. "It is just pride—or sentiment—which ever you like. I have plenty of money, and you have your way to make in business. Let me pay the bills."

"That is just pride, too," he retorted. But in the end they divided the account.

As Freda drove homeward Harvey sat beside her, wonderfully happy. And the funny thing was it was all so unreasonably. He had lost a night's sleep and given away a lump of money—strange doing for a business man always guided by his intelligence—and he was so absurdly happy over it.

"You know, Harvey," Freda said, when she drew up at her door, "I think you uttered a great truth tonight when you called me on the telephone."

She had nestled close beside him and her presence seemed to bewitch his memory.

"Did I?" he asked. "I don't remember. What did I say?"

"Can't you remember—dear?"

"No—dear."

"You said," and she faced him very coyly, "you said, 'Freda, I need you.'"

And the next moment Harvey Dane was behaving in the most emotional manner in all his young life.

Santa's Airship

HA! Santa Claus is up to date; he's sold his reindeer team.

He even thinks a motor car old-fashioned now would seem.

A brand new airship he has got; the very latest thing;

And, oh! a gorgeous load of toys old Santa's ship can bring.

And if, the night ere Christmas dawns, you wake and rub your eyes,

And peer across the chimney tops far down the starry skies,

Who knows? You may see Santa's ship a-skimming thro' the air,

Just showing ring dolls and skates, and drums on children ev'rywhere.

CHRISTMAS RECIPES
BUT THEY'RE GOOD!Noel Pudding, Ham Slices
Cranberry Salad and Ice Cream—Yum!

When toes are tingling, bells are ringing and cheeks are rosy red, you have a host of jolly visions before you go to bed. A nice big Juley Christmas cake appears before your eyes, and snow and ice and ringing sleigh bells, and candy, fruits and pies, and mistletoe and fun and holly together with the best of luck and happy times and laughter before you go to rest.

Noel Pudding

To one cup dry bread crumbs add one and one-half cups flour sifted with two and one-fourth teaspoons baking powder, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon nutmeg and one-half teaspoon cinnamon. Mix two-thirds cup brown sugar, two-thirds cup chopped suet, one-half cup chopped walnuts and one-fourth cup chopped dates, and add to the first mixture. Add two well-beaten eggs and one cup sour milk mixed with one-half teaspoon soda. Add the contents of a 1-pound can of figs, well drained, and eat fine. Fill a greased mold two-thirds full, cover tightly with the moist cover or with a waxed paper, and then a wet cheesecloth into which some flour has been rubbed. Steam two hours, and serve with Noel sauce.

To make this sauce boil the syrup from the can of figs and three tablespoons sugar to 238 degrees, or till it spins a thread. Beat two egg yolks well, pour syrup over slowly, and beat constantly. Add one-half teaspoon vanilla. Just before serving add one egg stiffly-beaten heavy cream and beat together.

This is a large pudding and will serve from sixteen to twenty people, as it is rich and the serving must not be too large.

Ham Slices Southern Style

Serves four persons. Preparation, forty minutes.

One slice ham.
Prepared mustard.
Sugar.
Milk.
One teaspoon beef extract
One tablespoon butter
One tablespoon flour.

Method—Spread the slice of ham with the prepared mustard and sprinkle with sugar. Put in baking dish and cover with cold milk. Cook about thirty minutes in a 350-degree F. oven. Melt butter and dissolve the beef extract in it, add one tablespoon of flour and make a gravy with the milk left in pan after ham is cooked. Serve with baked potatoes.

Raw Cranberry Salad

Two cups raw cranberries
One cup sugar
One cup chopped celery
One tablespoon lemon juice
Three-fourths cup nut meats
One package lemon gelatin
One cup water.

Dissolve lemon gelatin in hot water and add the cranberries that have been run through a food chopper. Then add the rest of the ingredients. Thoroughly mix and set in refrigerator until firm.

Peppermint Stick Candy Ice Cream
One-fourth pound peppermint candy, crushed

One pint whipping cream, whipped
Fold candy into whipped cream.
Place in tray of refrigerator with Cold Control at No. 6. Stir at half-hour intervals. Freezing time: 2½ hours.

XMAS SUGGESTIONS

If you have some intimate friend who has nearly everything, or to whom you have given so many times that you hesitate to repeat certain gifts, even though they would be highly acceptable, give perfume. It will be sure to please, if you select a fine perfume in the scent which expresses your friend's individuality. Or handkerchiefs. It used to be that handkerchiefs were a most common gift—everyone received two or three or more boxes every year. However, because of that very fact, the past few Christmases have seen fewer handkerchiefs scattered about the Christmas tree. Handkerchiefs can be a really lovely gift, if chosen carefully, using initials, emblems, or designs in harmony with the receiver's wardrobe or personality. What woman isn't tickled to receive a bag with all the little touches that are a part of the cleverest purses? They may be of French imports, in suede, antelope, beaded, reptile or crystal trimmed, in pouch styling or deep envelope shapes. Gloves are a useful gift, and also one which flatters the fair one, that is, if you are able to get the correct size. Fine French washable kid, capeskin, suede or leather—whatever your purse can afford. This year the long, classic all-on styles are most in favor. Cheer!

AN ADORNED COCONUT
MACAROON SANTA IS
FANCY KITCHEN GIFT

Aromatic Christmas cakes, puddings, or breads; confections and jellies; candy, nuts and dates; popcorn balls. Yes, they all are tempting, but one housewife, famed for her delicious kitchen-made Christmas gifts, mourns that she has given all the foregoing in every conceivable size, shape, color and variety, and that, although they have always been duly appreciated, she wants something new this year.

How's this? Mix up some coconut macaroons, using your favorite recipe, or the following:

Two egg whites, beaten stiff
Pinch of cream of tartar and salt
One cup sugar
One tablespoon flour
Two cups cornflakes (more if necessary)
One-fourth pound shredded coconut
Vanilla

Shape with your animal cookie cutters, or bake in animal shaped pans for ten or fifteen minutes in a moderate oven.

Then mix up another lot and mold an enormous Santa Claus. Before baking, place a nut on top, and sprinkle with red and green confectioner's sugar. This, carefully and uniquely wrapped, will make an unusual gift.

HINTS TO HELP
THE HOUSEWIFE

When snow flurries cloud the view from the kitchen window, the chief cook and bottler must give more thought to baking than in the hot months. If one can learn but one new recipe a week, or better method of concocting a meal, or a timely hint to lighten some daily duty, the week seems to have been worth while. See if these won't help you.

A pinch of baking soda added to any hotted syrup will keep it from crystallizing. A teaspoonful vinegar added to homemade syrup will keep it from candying after it stands.

When cream will not whip, add the white of an egg to it. Let both cream and egg be thoroughly chilled. Then try again and it will whip easily.

Before heating milk in a saucepan, rinse the pan with water and it will not scorch so easily.

To freshen shredded coconut, soak it in sweet milk a few moments before using.

A few whole cloves in the kettle of fat, give doughnuts a nice flavor.

Let Angels Have Wings---Not Chairs

Purchasing a Christmas present for the house, in the form of furniture, is a joy. Just think! The chair you are buying now will some day be used in the parlor of your children, or grandchildren, or even later by some impoverished relative. Doesn't that cause you to pause, wondering if your act now will not influence future destinies even a trifle?

But first, you and your family are to gain the benefit from it, so it should harmonize with the house in which it is to be used. Make it express more clearly the individuality of the house—which cannot be done by placing large overstuffed pieces in a tiny flat, nor elaborate French carvings in a simple colonial house, although different periods and styles may be used together, if they have some points in resemblance.

Furniture excellence is determined by three points—comfort, grace and sturdiness. A fourth might be termed suitability for the use designed. Meaningless curves and ornamentation are to be avoided, and fashion disregarded except in small accessories. Good furniture is good for all time.

TOPPY'S TRAVELS

Synopsis: Toppo leaves his home to follow his canary, Linny, who flies away. After many adventures, he is captured by the Pillows, enemies of his Cloud-Queen, whom he tries to save. However, he escapes with the aid of his friend, Mr. Frog, but just as they are escaping he looks back, and finds many Pillows pursuing them. Continue—

Just as Toppo was about to fall, Mr. Frog grabbed his arm and pulled him around a corner and into a tiny room. Toppo was so surprised, that he sank to the floor, exhausted.

"Hurry, we're not safe yet," Mr. Frog roared, and dragged Toppo to his feet. They rushed out of another door, just as the Pillows entered. Toppo didn't know where he was going. He followed Mr. Frog almost blindly through a garden, and at last stopped in a very small nest behind an enormous bush.

"They've lost us now!" Mr. Frog gasped in relief.

"Have they really?" Toppo could scarcely believe his ears.

When Toppo had regained his breath, he looked around. "Where are we now?" he inquired.

"This palace is surrounded by many large beautiful gardens, and so I've made my home these last few days behind this bush. There are lots of bugs and flies in this garden," Mr. Frog almost smiled, which was unusual.

"Oh, I wish I could eat bugs and flies," Toppo groaned.

"Why can't you?" Mr. Frog asked, idly, but seeing that Toppo was really suffering, he added carelessly, "I almost forgot. I've been storing some food here for you."

Toppo sprang up in delight. "Oh, where is it?" he cried eagerly.

Toppo ate ravenously, wondering after a little while what his mother would say if she saw him eat so fast and so much.

"You had better stop eating," Mr. Frog cautioned gruffly, "or you will be sick and won't be able to use the sword."

So Toppo stopped eating, but put some of the food in his pocket.

"You aren't so dumb as you might be, are you?" Mr. Frog commented.

"I'm so sleepy," murmured Toppo. "I can't think any more."

"Well, you'd better!" snapped Mr. Frog. "After I've fed you, then you want to sleep, instead of going to the rescue of your Queen. Haven't you any gratitude?"

"I'm sorry," said Toppo, conscience-stricken. "Where is the Queen?"

"You expect me to keep track of you and all the fair maidens whom you undertake to rescue, don't you?" Mr. Frog answered sourly. "Well, I guess I have done it. The Queen and her maidens are still locked up, and, of course, as you know, Egopli is back with his mother."

"But what are we going to do?" asked Toppo.

"Can't you think of anything else to say than that?" Mr. Frog grumbled. But Toppo didn't mind his friend's bitter disposition any longer. He believed that Mr. Frog was just that way from eating so many horrid flies and bugs.

"Do you know where the Queen is locked up?" he asked in return.

"Yes, she is in that room up there," Mr. Frog answered, pointing.

SANTA IS COMING TO REEVES' DRUG STORE ON CHRISTMAS EVE

Santa Claus is coming to Antioch on Christmas eve! Of course everyone knows that he will come when all good little children are safely tucked in bed, but he is making a special effort this year to come early enough for all school children and their little brothers and sisters to see him, really to see Santa Claus, before Maxima says, "Time for bed!"

He will be at Reeves' Drug Store shortly after 7 o'clock, so all you children be there waiting for him. Maybe little Brother has never actually seen Santa Claus before—with his red fur-trimmed suit, his long white beard and twinkling eyes—and he's fat and good-natured too, and likes little boys and girls better than anything else on earth.

Perhaps this question of what these wise men really saw in this helpless babe has been in our minds. What was it they saw in him after they arrived at the place of his birth, that caused them to fall down and worship him and give him such gifts as we are told? What sort of an urge was it within them that caused them, even before they saw him, to go from a far country in order to worship him?

Whatever answers we may give to these questions may be, after all, only a guess. Whatever urge it may have been that was in their breasts, or whatever they may have seen in this helpless babe, we may never know. But one thing is certain, their sincerity and earnestness of devotion in the worship of this Christ child is a thing so rare and unusual that it is almost impossible to find it in this day in our worship, not of a helpless babe, but of a Christ and God who is great as the universe itself. Even the wildest dreams or imaginations of these wise men concerning the future possibilities of this Christ child could not begin to compare with the actual achievements of this man himself and the spirit that was in him during the nineteen centuries since his birth.

One of the greatest preachers and thinkers of his day has said, "When this world shall have ceased to exist, and when the stars and planets shall have burned into cinders, only one thing of outstanding importance shall have happened on this earth, and that is that a man by the name of Jesus Christ was born, lived a short life, and died, and through whose life and death the world caught a glimpse of the face of God."

It is said of these wise men that they went from a far country to worship this child, and it is known that their method of travel was not easy nor pleasurable, nor was it without hazards and dangers. Is it unfair to ask the question, "How many of us would in this day travel far, and at a great inconvenience, and even endanger ourselves, in order to reach the place of worship, as these wise men did?"

Even after this long and hazardous journey, their gifts to the Christ child are symbolical of what ours should be. They gave gold, which is valuable. They gave frankincense, a symbol of true worship, and they gave myrrh, which is a symbol of service. Do our gifts to the God of the universe compare with their gifts to the Christ child?

Why this difference between the earnestness and sincerity of the wise men of old and the so-called present day Christianity? Who can account for it? Someone has suggested a reason which may not be without significance. Can it be that this difference is due to the fact that we have not seen the Christ in our day, whereas they did in their day? It is said that there are only two places where Christ may be seen, and that is in the Bible, and in human personality, and that there are only a few, comparatively, who read their Bibles, and still a fewer number who live such lives that Christ may be seen in them. Can it be said that the wise men of old saw more of the real Christ in the helpless babe than we have seen of him with all our churches, with their elaborate forms of worship, and through those of us who call ourselves Christians? This Christ is recorded to have said, "If I be lifted up above the world, I will draw all men unto me." If the world has not seen the Christ, it is, perhaps, because Christ has been subordinated to other things in our lives. He has not come first in our lives. Our business has come first, or our pleasures, or our desires, or our selfishness, or, perhaps, we have just considered ourselves the person of primary consideration, rather than Christ or the other fellow. If Christ is buried so far beneath many other things in our lives, of course the world can never see Him within us.

Antioch Town Team Defeats Grays Lake

Robert S. Grice Succumbs in Garage at Waukegan Home Friday

The Antioch town basket ball team defeated the Grayslake outfit by the score of 24-20, on Tuesday night. The guarding of Murrie and Willett kept the opponents relying on long shots, and also gave the local forwards a chance to use the short pass attack.

Tegen, of Grayslake, won high point honors with six baskets, while Brown and Wertz, of Antioch, tied with four baskets and a free throw; however the passing and teamwork of the boys was responsible for each basket. The score:

"WHAT THE WISE MEN SAW"

One of the New Testament narratives, relative to the birth of Jesus more than 1900 years ago, relates the incident of some men who were called, "Wise Men," who, following a strange star, journeyed from a far country to see the babe, Jesus. When they found him, it is said they fell at his feet and worshipped him and presented him with gifts, such as gold, valuable frankincense, and costly myrrh. After this act of their devotion they returned into their country.

Perhaps this question of what these wise men really saw in this helpless babe has been in our minds. What was it they saw in him after they arrived at the place of his birth, that caused them to fall down and worship him and give him such gifts as we are told? Former Antioch
Man Dies From Gas, Heart Attack

Robert S. Grice, an Antioch resident for many years, was found dead in his garage at 37 North West Street, Waukegan, Friday night, by his wife. At first it was thought that he was a victim of carbon monoxide gas from the car on which he had been working, but Coroner John L. Taylor stated that his death was probably due to heart failure.

He was to have kept an appointment with his wife at 4 o'clock that afternoon, and when he failed to arrive, she became worried, went home and found her husband dead in the garage, about 9:30 that night.

Mr. Grice was born in Indiana about sixty-two years ago. His family moved here when he was still a lad, and he lived here until some time after his marriage to Mina Wedge Forty-two years ago. He was employed as bookkeeper of the Hussey Lumber Company in Waukegan until a few months before his death.

He is survived by his wife, a brother, Lyman B. Grice, of Antioch, and two sisters, Mrs. Will Bryant, of Wilmot, and Mrs. Frank Weigle, of Monroe, Wis.

Burial was in the Millburn cemetery.

Elmer Stenzel and Lawrence Stenzel returned from a 10-days hunting trip, about 60 miles from the Michigan state line. They brought back a 240-lb. deer.

and others may never even suspect that we have been with Him. Without doubt, it is here that we have failed. It would be with profit and satisfaction to us if, at this Christmas time, we followed the example of the wise men of old and search for the Christ until we find Him, then tell the world by the lives we might live.

"God The Preserver Of Man," was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, December 14.

The Golden Text was, "Withhold not thou thy tender mercies from me, O Lord: let thy loving kindness and thy truth continually preserve me (Psalms 40:11)."

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Preserve me, O God: for in thee do I put my trust. Thou wilt shew me the path of life: in thy presence is fulness of joy; at thy right hand there are pleasures for evermore" (Psalms 16:1, 11).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "There is no power apart from God. Omnipotence has all-power, and to acknowledge any other power is to dishonor God" (p. 228).

The choir will sing at the morning worship at 10:45 and the subject of the sermon by the pastor will be, "The First Christmas Gift." The Epworth League will meet one hour earlier than usual, at 5 o'clock. Miss Ruth Mapes is to be the leader of the devotions and discussions.

On Sunday evening at 7:30, our choir will again present the beautiful Christmas cantata, entitled, "Chimes of the Holy Night," by Fred B. Holton. The choir is under the direction of S. E. The program will begin promptly at 7:30.

The official boards met at the parsonage on Monday evening of this week. Instead of the regular meeting of the Thimble Bee Society on Wednesday of this week a Christmas party will be held on Friday afternoon at the church with Mrs. Bohl as the hostess. The choir met for rehearsal on Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock, and will meet again on Friday evening at 7 o'clock.

On Thursday evening the Boy Scouts of Troop 81 will serve a dinner to the mothers and fathers of our Scouts. Following the dinner at 6:30, at the church, a short program will be given by the Scouts. Mr. Warren Blodgett, Scout executive of Lake County, will be present and address the Scouts and parents.

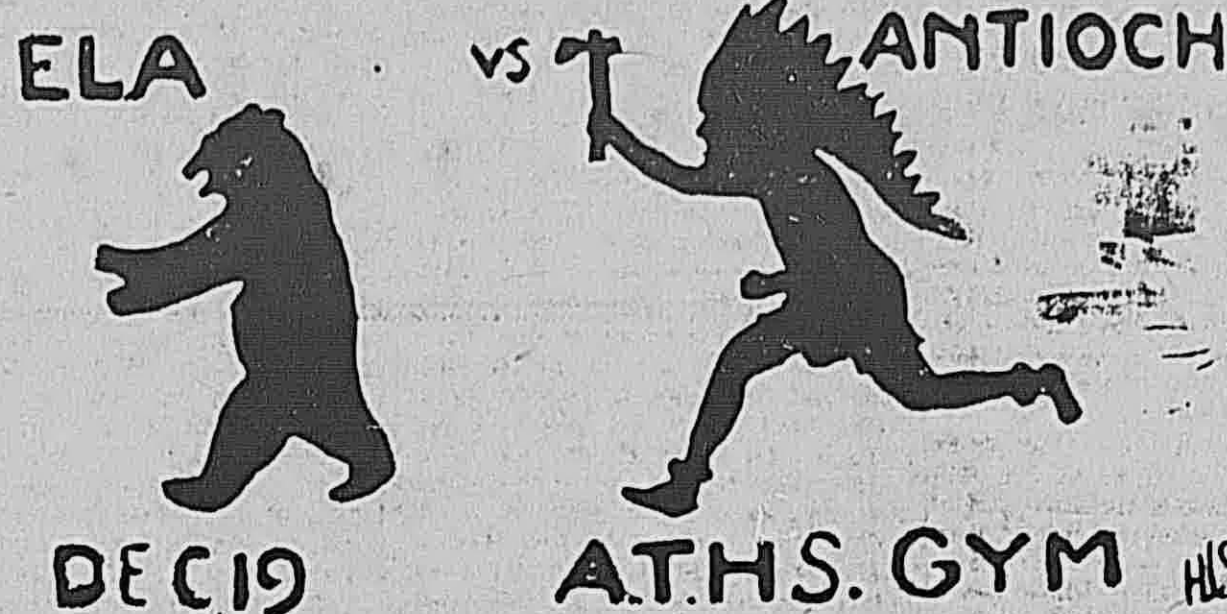

The Sunday school Christmas program will be given on next Tuesday evening, at 7:30, at the church. The primary and junior departments of the Sunday school are invited to be present.

The object of our benevolences at this Christmas time will be the Orphanage at Lake Bluff. We greatly desire that every member of our church and Sunday school will contribute something to this worthy cause. The orphanage at Lake Bluff provides a home for more than one hundred children who would otherwise be homeless. This institution is provided for only through the contributions which are made by friends who are interested in the work which is being done. Any kind of contributions which may be made will be acceptable. Among them may be: Foods of any kind, clothing, canned goods, candy, toys, dolls, or money. Every one of us can do something, little or much, and we urgently solicit your co-operation in helping those who are less fortunate than we at this Christmas time. Your contributions may be brought to the church Sunday, or to the church on Tuesday evening, at the Sunday school program, or they may be left at the parsonage any time before Christmas day.

BARRINGTON IN
EXCITING GAME*Locals to Play Ela Here
Friday; Prepare for Big Game

In one of the fastest games ever played by an Antioch team, the locals defeated Barrington on the Barrington floor by a score of 27-22. The game was very closely contested during the second half, neither team having a safe margin at any time.

The game was started by the second squad, the regulars being gradually worked in. Although Fuchs was the high man, scoring five points in the first half, and four in the second, Turk was the mainstay of the team, keeping cool and steady during the second half, when the high speed maintained threatened the control of our team. He made two free throws in the first half and considerably encouraged Antioch fans by sinking three baskets during the exciting second half. Brogan scored six points in the early part of the game, and King scored two. Keulman made a basket when needed in the last few minutes.

At the end of the half, the game stood 12-8, in Antioch's favor, and the boys were not worrying over the outcome, but Barrington staged a rally, with Bennett sinking three long shots, and Grabenkort, their star performer, continuing his brilliant work of the first half. However, he was taken out on fouls before the game ended.

Coch Reed was pleased with the manner in which the boys stood up under the terrific strain. "It was one of the fastest high school games of schools of any size that I have ever seen. It was a thriller," he declared. The second string was defeated.

The team has shown a marked improvement over their performances at the beginning of the season. Last week, they played and won five practice games.

The Ela high school team of Lake Zurich will play on the local floor tomorrow night, in a battle which present dope indicates will be another thriller. Ela may be remembered as the team which upset Libertyville's hopes of the tournament championship in the preliminaries last winter.

Historic Communion

The first communion service held on American soil was that held on the little island in the James river, where the settlement of Jamestown was built. On June 11, 1607, Rev. Robert Hunt administered the Anglican communion to the little band, who knelt on the ground under a ship's sail to receive it.

Fuchs Elected
Football Captain*Grade School Children Are Examined; Will Enjoy
Parties Friday

Tony Fuchs was elected captain of the football squad for the past season at the meeting of the football boys club this week. Frank Hahn and Russell McNeil were also candidates for this honor. Most schools elect a captain at the beginning of the season, but Antioch elects honorary captains after each game to serve as captain on the practice field and in the next game. A vote is taken by the boys to decide which individual man has been of most outstanding value to the team. Fuchs, Hahn, Munsell and McNeil have each held that position this year.

High school classes will be dismissed Tuesday, December 23, and will be resumed Monday, January 5.

The report of Beatrice Gallagher, dental hygienist, on the physical condition of the Antioch grade school showed that thirteen pupils had teeth in perfect condition. They are: Dean Williams, seventh grade; Ruth Alice Cannon, sixth; Edward Graves, fifth; Robert Burke, George Bartlett and Carolyn Phillips, fourth; Walter Taylor, Jeanette Whitte and Jean Cannon, second; Doris Klass, Frank Petty, Arthur Maplethorpe and David Dupre, first.

Her report revealed that of the 155 children examined, but seventeen had clean mouths, 127 mouths were fair, and forty-one were dirty; that sixteen had brushed their teeth daily, 163 occasionally, and six never; all the children have healthy gums; 531 5-year molars were perfect, 121 had cavities, thirteen had been extracted, and twenty-five were unerupted; 362 temporary cavities were found, and 175 permanent ones; ten pupils have teeth that need straightening, sixty-five have teeth that need cleaning, and three do not own a toothbrush. Thirty-one students were not examined.

Preliminary Christmas giving will delight the hearts of over 200 grade school pupils tomorrow afternoon, before they are dismissed for a long 2-weeks holiday. Each will give and receive at least one gift, due to the custom of drawing names. Several of the grades are combining for the Christmas tree and program. The first and second will have their party together, as will the third and fifth. Most of the programs will be brief, with carol singing, recitations, and all acts. The girls' glee club, with Miss Elizabeth Tuten, will hold a special party after school today, to play games and exchange gifts.

The seventh and eighth grade students, with the co-operation of the rest of the school, are preparing boxes of clothing and food to be sent to three needy families in Chicago, one of which is absolutely destitute. The names of these families, the number and age of children in each were secured through the Good Fellows. Because of their knowledge of the names and ages of the poor children, the Antioch youngsters are taking much interest and pride in filling the boxes.

Symbols of Jewish Faith

A phylactery is a reminder. It is, in reality, a small leathern box containing slips of parchment on which are written Scriptural passages. Two such boxes are worn by Jews, one on the head and one on the left arm, during the time of prayer on all mornings except those of Sabbaths and holy days. The passages are Exodus, 13:1-10, 11-16 and Deuteronomy, 6:4-9 and 11:13-22, and are reminders of obligation to keep the law.

The Gramatic club held their meeting last Thursday. A radio was installed through the courtesy of G. Dean which furnished music for dancing.

The basketball game last Friday, between Williams Bay and Wilmot, ended in a 17-16 score, with Wilmot on the short end. The game, seen-sawing back and forth, might have ended differently had not Hanson, Wilmot's star cent, been injured.

This Friday the high school meets the strong Kenosha Vocationalists. In the preliminary game, the seconds meet a team from Waukegan.

Architectural Term

A "carrel" or "carol" in architecture is defined as a small enclosure in a cloister, built against a window on the inner side and serving as a study.

"Queen of Heaven"

The Egyptians in invocations to the deities used the term "Queen of Heaven," and in Jeremiah 7:18 it is recorded: "In the streets of Judah and the streets of Jerusalem, the children gather wood and the fathers kindle the fire, and the women knead the dough, to make cakes to the queen of heaven"; also 44:17: "We will certainly perform every word that has gone forth out of our mouth, to burn incense unto the queen of heaven."—Washington Star.

Alarm Pictures Thief

Germany has a burglar alarm which not only gives light and sound signals of the intruder's presence, but takes a picture of the thief.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Seasonal Light in Sky

The zodiacal light is a soft, hazy wedge of light reaching from the horizon along the ecliptic just as twilight is ending or as dawn is beginning. Its base is 20 or 30 degrees wide and it generally can be followed 90 degrees from the sun. Sometimes it is seen as a narrow, very faint, band entirely around the sky. The spring months are most favorable for observing the zodiacal light in the evening, and the autumn months for observing it in the morning.

Transmitting Hatred

Every generation enjoys the use of a vast hoard of hatred bequeathed to it by antiquity, and transmits that hatred, augmented by fresh acquisitions, to future ages.—Lord Macaulay.

Theory in Dispute

The quantum theory is the theory that radiation from a body is emitted only in discrete units, called quanta, and, according to some forms of the theory, that absorption occurs in the same discontinuous manner. This theory is now widely accepted by scientists. It has, however, been criticized by Frank Wigglesworth Clark.—Washington Star.

Beautiful Elms

The elm is one of the field and highway delights in many regions, but particularly in New England. Beautiful specimens may constantly be seen, and occasionally a village or town street will be arched over by lines of them. The sixty varieties are of various shapes and contours. The wine glass elm is, perhaps, the most beautiful.

"R. FIX-IT" and "Santa Claus" were among the names affectionately given to Ray Charlton by intimate friends, for obvious reasons. This car full of young folks on their way to a neighboring town, however, thought they had him stumped, for the car seemed hopelessly delayed in a line of vehicles baffled by a washout ahead.

"Now, Mr. Fix-It!" challenged Muriel, when they found there was nothing to do but wait for the repairer to get the road passable; and another added, "Yes, Santa Claus, what are you going to do about this Christmas party? It looks as though we wouldn't get to the Merrill's until Christmas day is over."

"You folks just wait," said Ray, stepping out into the sloppy road, and disappearing behind the car at their rear.

When he returned, his friends laughed uproariously, for he was carrying a small spruce branch, and several red and green bundles. Fitting the fir branch into the cigarette holder of the car, he produced three miniature candles which he attached to the tree and lighted. Disappearing again, he came back, chanting, "Jingle-jingle-Ho, there! Make way for Father Christmas!" Re-entering the car, he distributed his gifts.

The girls uttered surprised exclamations on receiving dainty little boxes of face powder; two of the men had packages of cigarettes, and the one who didn't smoke, a handkerchief bearing his initial—all attractively wrapped in colored paper!

"Now," announced Ray—"music and dancing, and then refreshments," with which he produced a pocket comb and piece of paper for orchestra, and made them all rise and do gymnastic exercises to limber and warm themselves. Then he passed a box of nutcracker bars, sent by his California aunt, thanking his stars he had brought them along. The fun thus started kept up until the "Move on" signal really surprised them.

Once past the repaired washout and on their way, Muriel said: "Now, Santa Fix-It, tell us how you worked the magic."

"That was dead easy!" he laughed. "You can always find what you want if you look long enough. I'd noticed something green by the road, and after I'd munched along back a few rods, I found it was a little spruce tree. I couldn't pull it up, but my trusty blade severed a branch, and—there you are!"

"But the candles—and the cigarettes?"

"Yes, and the powder boxes, fancy paper and all?"

"I simply collected those from the cars back of us. One man was a salesman, with a case of those boxes. A woman in another car had a lot of little candles for her kid's birthday cake, and also some bright paper. The cigarettes are my own, just done up fancy-like, and the hanky it, too—it was just my good luck that the non-smoker of the bunch had an initial the same as mine. The woman with the candles let me into her car and helped me do up the packages. That's all."

"But enough," murmured Muriel, "to prove that the Christmas spirit is still alive."

New Idea at Barbecue
Natural gas solved the problem of roasting a ton of beef at a barbecue in the Southwest, at which 3,000 customers of a utility company were fed. A trench three feet deep and about fifty feet long was dug and burners of perforated casing were placed below a double layer of loose brick. A heavy wire grate was stretched above the brick and on it was placed the ton of beef to be roasted.

Synchronous Clocks

The bureau of standards says a synchronous clock, operated on a circuit for which it is designated, can neither gain or lose, nor be set. It must be kept in exact step with the generator in the power house. However, if the current stops, the clock will stop unless it has some auxiliary attachment to keep it running.

THE GREAT AMERICAN VALUE

Fine-car distinction and quality in the new Chevrolet Six

Again, Chevrolet and General Motors have utilized their combined resources to establish a new and higher standard of value for the American motor car.

The new Chevrolet represents a type of economical transportation that America has long anticipated—a low-priced six styled with such striking talent and good taste, so smartly beautiful and complete in its perfection of detail, so advanced and refined mechanically that you will immediately recognize it as the Great American Value.

This great value is the outcome of four basic Chevrolet advantages: (1) The savings of volume production in nineteen immense, modern plants. (2) The economies which result from great purchasing power. (3) The benefits of contin-ous research in General Motors laboratories and on the General Motors Proving Ground. And (4) the close association with the Fisher Body Corporation who, this year, have surpassed all their previous achievements in developing bodies of outstanding quality, refinement and value.

These basic advantages have made it possible to build a finer car at lower cost. They have enabled Chevrolet to offer a car with a longer wheel-base—greater roominess and comfort—strikingly smarter style—impressive new luxury—more thoroughly satisfactory performance—greater dependability. And to pass on these savings of efficient manufacturing to the buyer in the form of lower prices!

Grandmother's
Yuletide
Adviceby
Helen Gaisford

JOAN slammed the front door behind her and rushed upstairs. Granny, busily darning in her rocker, looked up with a start. It wasn't like Joan to rush in like that, without even a word of greeting. And at Christmas time, too!

She laid her darning aside and with slow, careful steps climbed the stairs. At Joan's door she paused and knocked.

"Who is it?"

"Just Granny, dear. May I come in?"

"Why, of course," Joan opened the door. "What's the matter, Granny?"

"That's just what I want to know. You and Ted had a fuss?"

Joan looked up in wonder at her grandmother's understanding. "Yes," she admitted, "and, oh, Granny, I'm so miserable! What do you suppose he said?"

"Now, now, I don't want to hear, and you shouldn't be bringing back all that was said, looking for grievances. All I want to know is who, really and truly, was in the wrong."

"Really and truly, he was, Granny."

"Then you should apologize."

"I? But Ted was the one at fault."

"Of course, dear. That is just the reason. Now, if you were in the wrong, you might possibly force him to humor you, but if he is in the wrong he will naturally never want to give in."

She took off her glasses and wiped them thoughtfully. "And then—how lucky it's Christmas time—hang up some mistletoe."

"Well—maybe. If you're sure it will work."

"Let me tell you a story, child. Sit down." Granny settled herself and rocked lightly back and forth. "It was when I was young—young as you are, Joan—that I fell in love. My people were not so well off as the boys' were, although they were gentlemen on both sides. His parents had picked out a wife for him, years before—the daughter of friends of the family—and were determined that they should marry."

"I met him at church socials every now and then, and on picnics, and after a time he began calling on me. Although I didn't know it, whenever he came to see me, he told his folks he was going to see this other girl."

"When I found that out, I was mad, and rightly, too. That night when he came I wouldn't see him, and sent word to him that he could go to her house for all of me."

"To my amazement, he did! Then I realized how much I loved him, but I was afraid he would never come back. At last I decided to send him a note. I told him how sorry I was, and begged his forgiveness. It was quite a bit after Christmas, but we still had mistletoe, so I hung sprays of it in every likely corner and doorway all over the house, and waited."

"Before long he came, and I found that the mistletoe had been an inspiration. He told me then that I wasn't to blame at all, and that he had only gone to Clara's to tell her that there could never be anything between them."

Granny leaned forward in her chair. "Do you know who the boy was?" she asked.

"Grandfather?"

"Yes, indeed. We were married soon after that, but I always found it paid to give in when I was most sure I was right."

The doorbell pealed through the house, and Joan, smoothing her hair

"It Was When I Was Young—Young as You Are, Joan."

as she went, ran down to open the door. Granny, from the front window, looked down on a familiar roadster and smiled.

After a long time, hearing the front door close and the roar of a motor, she descended the stairs. At their foot Joan clasped her.

"Oh, darling, it worked, it worked," she chanted. "He's coming over to dinner tomorrow, and he—he mentioned something about bringing a ring. And, oh, Granny," she whispered, burying her head in her grandmother's shawl, "Ted must have had the Christmas spirit already, for we got along just fine without the mistletoe."

H. Pierstorff and Mrs. W. A. Bonner. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. W. A. Bonner; vice president, Mrs. Pierstorff; secretary, Mrs. Robert Bonner; treasurer, Mrs. J. S. Denman.

Writes Christmas Poem

C. W. Freeman, a resident of Antioch 43 years ago, sends a poem entitled, "Christmas." He is now past 71, and lives at Toledo, Ill. "I remember with pleasure," he writes, "when I was the only teacher in the school of seventy-four pupils, forty-three years ago, and I also preached twice each Sunday as well as handling weddings and funerals."

grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Kaluf, during the past week.

The C. E. business meeting was held at the Lewis Bauman home on Saturday evening.

Mrs. Bauman, Sr., who has spent the past six months at the Lewis Bauman home, has gone to spend the winter with her daughter, Mrs.

Freeman lived here two years, boarding at the Nola Pullen farm. As a preacher he was successor to Rev. Roberts. He is declared to have been an excellent teacher, according to Mrs. Chase Webb, one of his pupils at that time. Since leaving Antioch, he has taught and preached for many years in southern and central Illinois.

CHRISTMAS

Christmas is coming, and it soon will be here. Reminding the world that Christ did appear in Bethlehem-Juda, a long, long time ago.

To save his people from sin and its woe.

Christmas is coming, and it soon will be here. With joy bells ringing in tones loud and clear.

Let people of all nations in fellowship meet. And masters with kindness their servants all treat.

Beneath fifteen bright, beautiful, burning lamps, There is now lying a bright silver star. Marking the place where our Lord Jesus was born. In the past ages so distant and far.

While the golden sun continues to brightly shine, And rivers keep flowing into the sea, People will continue to go to Bethlehem. The birthplace of the son of God to see.

All Burned Clay Brick

Six thousand or more years ago when some ingenious forerunner of the present legion of architects and builders fashioned a rude block of clay and dried it to a lasting hardness in the sun, he dubbed it a brick, and the name stuck. Ever since that time the unit of burned clay has been recognized for what its inventor first named it, a brick, no more, no less.

Impractical Device

A solar heater is one that creates energy by using the sun's rays to make steam or vapor from water. There have been numerous attempts to perfect this heater; however, they have not proved practical.

Sunday School to Present Program Christmas Evening

The Newsman says, "Hurry,
And not be late!"
His helpers are rushing
And each have a date.

For Christmas is coming,
They have stockings to fill;
And Santa is waiting
To give them a thrill.

So what can we do
When there's nothing to write—
We've searched the town through,
There's not even a fight.

There's a wonderful spirit
At this time of year,
When love fills the heart
There's no room for fear.

Some stay in their homes
And some take a ride
When Christmas day comes
And the happy Yuletide.

They'll load down the table
With good things to eat,
And look for the loved ones
Whom they hope to greet.

The time will soon be here,
So let's wait a bit;
We'll see the tree loaded
And candles all lit.

The Bristol M. E. Sunday school will give their Christmas program Christmas eve, December 24, in the church. There will be the usual Christmas tree, and Santa Claus will be there.
